To all of our clients, business associates and friends,

McGuire Performance Solutions has been a member of the MountainView family of companies for the past several years. Today, MountainView is launching a new name, logo and website and McGuire Performance Solutions is beginning an important transition to share the MountainView brand. Our parent company is now known as MountainView Financial Solutions, LLC, which we believe is a name that better reflects our core services and mission – bringing solutions to your asset valuation and pricing, credit and interest rate risk management, model risk management and transactional needs.

For the next several months, we will be co-branding the services traditionally provided by McGuire and using together the familiar McGuire Performance Solutions and the new MountainView Financial Solutions names and logos. In the near future, all of our services will be provided to you under one name!

Together, we offer you a comprehensive suite of services.
